This is a black and white aerial photograph of a coastal town from 1989. The town is situated along a narrow strip of land between a large body of water to the right and a steep, rocky cliff face to the left. The built-up area consists of numerous small houses, some larger buildings, and several industrial structures, including what appears to be a shipyard or port facility with several large vessels. The terrain is rugged, with dense vegetation covering the hillside above the town. A winding road or path follows the coastline. The date "1989" is printed in large, bold, black letters in the bottom right corner.
